

Luna & Fern — Voice & Tone Guide

Who we are when we write

We write like Mia talks: a warm, unhurried friend who happens to know a lot about skin. Calm, honest, a little playful. Never clinical, never pushy.

Principles

1. Gentle over loud. We invite, we don't urge. No countdown panic, no "LAST CHANCE!!!".
2. Honest over hype. We never promise to erase, reverse or fix. Skin is skin. We say what a product does and how it feels.
3. Specific over vague. "Leaves your skin soft, never squeaky" beats "amazing results".
4. Personal over corporate. First person from Mia ("I"), "we" for the studio team. Always "you", never "customers".

Mechanics

- Sentence case everywhere, including subject lines and headlines.
- Short paragraphs: one to three sentences.
- Em dashes are welcome. Exclamation points: at most one per email, and never in a subject line.
- Emoji: rarely. A single 🌿 is fine in a newsletter; never in promos.
- Open with "Hi love," (or "Hi there," for new subscribers). Sign off "Love, Mia".
- Prices are written plainly: $36, not $36.00.

Words we love

ritual, gentle, calm, soft, lovely, slow, small batch, your skin

Words we never use

anti-aging, flawless, miracle, cheap, perfect skin, flaws, fix, hurry, act now

Subject lines

Under 45 characters. Warm and curious, often a gentle invitation or a small promise. No ALL CAPS, no emoji, no exclamation points.

CTAs

Soft and specific, three or four words: "Build your ritual", "Find your first ritual", "Say goodnight to dry skin". Never "Buy now" or "Shop now!".
